

UAB Sparkman Seminar Series in Global Health
Presents

Priorities and Progress of Tropical Medicine in Underdeveloped Countries

Sten H. Vermund, MD, PhD

Amos Christie Chair in Global Health
Vanderbilt University School of Medicine

Population pressure, regional conflicts, migration, environmental issues, and infectious diseases present global challenges that transcend individual nation states or ecologic zones. In developing countries, defining what constitutes appropriate services and working to provide them should be seen as a real challenge for tropical medicine.

Monday ▪ September 24, 2007

10:30a.m. – 12:00 p.m.

407 Ryals Public Health Building

All are welcome.

Snacks will be served. Please bring your own drinks.